

Bring Summer Fun to the Winter Doldrums.....

Build a Beachy Winter Wonderland

Go on: Unearth the beach pails and shovels from the garage and bring some seaside fun to your snowy yard and build castles in snow! You don't have to neglect the snowman, however. Just replace his coal eyes with sunglasses and his buttons with swimming trunks and a Hawaiian shirt.

Go Camping in Your Room

It may be too chilly to pitch a tent in the woods but it's the ideal temperature to set up camp in your room. Roll out the sleeping bags, turn off the lights, fire up the lanterns and get your best ghost story prepared for your first-ever family faux-camping trip.

Be a Tourist in Your Own Town

Double decker bus rides, museum visits, walking tours – who says these things are just for tourists? Pick a day to pretend you and your class are visiting from out of town and look at your city in a whole new way.

You can even plan your whole itinerary with the help of sites like tripadvisor.com or a call to your local visitor's bureau.
