

A Home for a Bug

Insects and bugs do not want to be confined. They find a place to live out in nature, but your child can make their “place” a “home.” Go outside and discover areas in your yard, flowerbed, or any area with plants near your home. Let your child observe the bugs, and then tell them that they are going to make a home for the bugs. What might the bugs like? Some twinkle lights so they can see in the dark? Some extra rocks to climb on? Some leaves to lay on? Let your child’s imagination run wild and make a beautiful home for the bugs outside of their home!
