

I See Fall

by Charles Ghigna

“I see leaves drop from a tree. I see a pile just for me!” This is a sentence from a wonderful book that will take your child through all the sights of fall. After reading this book, it only makes sense to go outside and make a pile of leaves for you and your child to jump in! If you don’t live in an area that has fall-colored leaves, or any leaves at all, ask your child what they might like to jump into! How about some warm towels right out of the dryer? What about a kiddie pool full of plastic balls? Jumping in a pile of anything can be a lot of fun!
