

Little Crab Finds a Friend

Help your child become an author with this wordless picture book! Since there are no words, you and your child can change the story every time you read it! To take this book to another level, you can write the words your child says so they can really “read” the book. Place a strip of painter’s tape on the bottom of each page of this board book. Using a sharpie, write the words you and your child decide on to tell the story. After you have written the words on each page, go back and reread the story. Since your child helped make up the story, they will be able to read it back with you. After a few readings, take off the tape, replace it with new tape, and write another story! This book will never get old!
